One of Elements Jazz's all-time highlights: a full quartet concert at the Rheinhalle in Remagen, Germany – Miles, Duke and Parker to a roaring crowd and several encores.

One of the band's greatest nights happened far from Paris, on the banks of the Rhine. At the Rheinhalle in Remagen, Germany, Elements Jazz played a full concert to a big, fired-up crowd – a quartet of Arnaud Quercy on piano, Elliot Langlois on double bass, Romain Courty on drums and Pierre-Alexis Courty on guitar, digging into the heart of the jazz canon: Miles Davis's "So What", Duke Ellington's "Caravan", Charlie Parker and more.

The audience simply wouldn't let them go, calling the band back for several encores. A rare German excursion and a genuine highlight in the group's story – swing and bebop carried across the Rhineland to a room that didn't want the night to end.
